I

ACCOUNTABLE ROOF

Ownership and stewardship remain coupled

Land held. Land managed.

SINGLE-MINDED PROPOSITION

Make vertical integration feel like a covenant, not a capability list.

Business context

A newly formalized real estate platform with a twenty-year operating record, seeking credibility with family offices, high-net-worth principals, institutional partners, and property owners.

Communication objective

Position Thane & Reeve as the small, senior, aligned alternative to fragmented real estate firms - a partner that acquires only what it is willing to operate.

Desired response

“These are principals, not intermediaries. Their judgment is independent, their accountability durable, and resident dignity is part of the operating case.”

MANDATE

Every expression should reward attention, resist hype, show the work, and make resident dignity visible.

The Owner-Steward

Neither a fund brand, a developer brand, nor a property management brand. The point of difference is the refusal to separate principal judgment from operating consequence.

CATEGORY	Integrated real estate owner-operator
FRAME OF REFERENCE	Boutique investment and operating firm
POINT OF DIFFERENCE	Ownership and operations remain under one roof
RESIDENT COVENANT	Safe, well-maintained homes; responsive management; residents treated with dignity
TIME HORIZON	A generational firm; every asset underwritten for patient or permanent ownership

Write to experienced principals. Never perform for a crowd.

& Family offices

Need direct access, visible alignment, and judgment they can diligence.

& HNW principals

Need readable terms, a human-sized relationship, and no institutional theater.

& Institutional capital

Need governance, reporting discipline, execution history, and role clarity.

& Property owners

Need discretion, speed, certainty, and a principal-to-principal conversation.

THE OPERATING COVENANT

Investors should see the resident promise clearly: safe homes, responsive management, and dignified treatment.

THANE & REEVE

REAL PROPERTY

THANE

REEVE

The principal who holds land - earned through service, defended across generations.

The promise that ownership and stewardship never get uncoupled.

The professional steward who runs the estate - balancing books, obligations, and long-term value.

BRAND COVENANT

The ampersand is not a flourish. It is the entire business.

One promise. Three proofs. Five behaviors.

CORE PROMISE

Ownership and operations stay under one accountable roof.

PROOF 01

Capital

Deal-by-deal; GP money in every transaction.

PROOF 02

Development

Entitlement-first; build what we intend to hold.

PROOF 03

Management

Everything we own, we run - with safe, responsive, dignified resident service.

- Underwrite to hold
- Walk from weak deals
- Report plainly
- Answer directly
- Serve residents well

Measured. Direct. Literate. Earned.

Measured

State the fact, then let the fact work.

DO Use “$37.75M institutional financing.”

AVOID “Market-leading capital solutions.”

Direct

Prefer principal language to sales language.

DO Use “We will read it.”

AVOID “Submit your opportunity today.”

Literate

Sound informed, never ornate for its own sake.

DO Use precise historical and operating context.

AVOID Borrowed luxury vocabulary.

Earned

Every assertion should carry evidence.

DO Use dates, approvals, dollars, doors, and roles.

AVOID Unsupported superlatives.

Language ready for market.

PRIMARY TAGLINE

Land held. Land managed.

POSITIONING LINE

A real estate firm that refuses to separate ownership from operations.

PRINT NOTE

Brass is an accent, never a background field behind the ampersand. Match it by physical drawdown before offset or foil production; screen values are not press approvals.

Editorial authority, operating clarity.

PRIMARY DISPLAY

Fraunces

Headlines, names, pull quotes, numerals. Use optical size and italics deliberately; never set body copy in display weights.

PRIMARY SANS

INTER TIGHT

Navigation, labels, tables, legal, and data. Use light-to-regular weights with controlled tracking.

THE AMPERSAND

EB Garamond Italic

Reserved for the ampersand. The glyph should feel inherited, not ornamental.

Recommended hierarchy

Display 44-72 pt / Section 24-36 pt / Body 10.5-12 pt / Utility 7.5-9 pt with 140-220 tracking.

Survey evidence, not decorative geometry.

- Cadastral line Boundary paths imply title, stewardship, and accountable control.
- Survey node A point of decision or handoff; use sparingly, never as confetti.
- Editorial rule Hairlines organize evidence and create institutional rhythm.
- Plate notation Roman numerals, sections, dates, and captions make work feel documented.
- Paper grain Barely visible texture adds material warmth. Maximum 4% opacity.

AVOID Generic luxury motifs, gold gradients, architectural wireframes without meaning, crest imagery, and motion that repeats indefinitely.

Show the work at the scale it was lived.

SUBJECT

Owned assets, working buildings, materials, thresholds, principal presence.

TREATMENT

Archival monochrome; honest perspective; visible context; restrained contrast.

COMPOSITION

Leave quiet fields for evidence, captions, and argument-led copy.

MOTION

One entrance, one survey draw, one purpose. Respect reduced-motion settings.

NEVER

Stock handshakes, skyline heroics, drone clichés, staged “deal room” scenes.

A calling card, not a miniature brochure.

Re: The operating work

Dear Partner,

The purpose of this note is simple: to state what we believe, what we have underwritten, and what we are prepared to operate.

Every transaction closes on its own documents. Every asset is expected to justify its place. Every report should make the next decision easier.
